

THE LAUDER INSTITUTE IN AFRICA

The future is African. By 2050, the African continent will double its current population of 1.2 billion and will be home to 10 megacities. By 2100, one out of every three people on Earth will be African. The contemporary study of Africa is critical for the next generation of global business leaders.

The Lauder Institute's Africa Program equips students with the skills and insight to lead within Africa's dynamic business environment. The Africa Program focuses on understanding the factors shaping Africa's ever-changing geopolitical and economic relationship with the world. Students study subnational differences, regional economic clusters, and the history, politics, environment, and cultures of an array of African countries. The program provides students with opportunities to deepen and enrich their knowledge of Africa through academic seminars, excursions, internships, and cultural activities. In addition to interdisciplinary coursework, the Africa Program includes an on-the-ground summer immersion in Africa.
