

- Andres le Roux, class of 1992
- Europe/German track
- <https://www.linkedin.com/in/andresleroux/>
- Current country of residence: USA/Bay Area

Andres Le Roux is a multilingual entrepreneurial and innovative business professional that thrives participating in the creation of value. Andres has worked in finance, entertainment and technology in diverse and evolving roles and positions to always achieve extraordinary results. He is particularly excited about working in cross-cultural and cross functional environments to address new and rapidly changing challenges. Andres has also facilitated the implementation of solutions that have multiplied the efficiency and workflow of the organizations involved. As a mentor at the San Francisco NASDAQ Entrepreneurial Center, he has helped organizations at multiple levels of evolution in six continents achieve and shatter milestones.

I want to join the Lauder Board because the Lauder community is particularly geared towards many of the values that I consider essential for the 21st Century, specifically thinking multi-culturally and understanding and adapting to the values that the different cultures bring to the table. I want to be part of the next steps growing and solidifying this very inspiring community by adding my ideas, skills, connections and experience.

I want to contribute by helping organize events that bring interesting people, ideas and ventures to share and connect with Lauder Alumni. I believe this is a very effective way to enrich the perspectives Alumni already have, and open opportunities for mutual growth. Also, I believe my background using new tools for creating a strong brand and effectively reach out to new groups can be particularly suited to increase participation and attendance of Alumni and grow the Lauder Institute awareness in the world.

Best,

Andres